

Moneyquest aims to add 100 staff

Mortgages

By Guy Anker

Mortgage broker Moneyquest is planning a major recruitment drive to boost its workforce by 75 per cent.

It is part of its relocation plans as it is moving within Glasgow and aims to hire 100 staff to cope with increasing business.

The firm, which also has an Edinburgh office, handled £1.1bn of mortgage business last year and wants to reach £3bn of over the next two years and float on Aim.

Operations director Paul Reynolds says: "The 140 staff

Moneyquest on the move: left to right, managing director, Steve Pollard, sales director Derek Pollard and operations director Paul Reynolds across our offices in Glasgow and Edinburgh are receiving more enquiries than they are able to process. It is essential that we boost staff numbers to provide the resources to meet the increasing demands for our service. Our staff are our biggest asset. We employ a dynamic team of people who have helped us get this far. Now we are looking to expand that quickly to ensure we become the number one broker in the UK within two years."